Mr. Driggs wrote that he had been instructed by the Executive Committee to ask for Mr. Nugent's resignation without delay. I saw Mr. Driggs and he would not make any definite statement about the matter. So far as I could learn the objection to Mr.
Nugent was something regarding his morality. I suggested that if I could go around with a searchlight among the trustees it would not be unlikely to disclose some dark spots. The rumors in regard to Mr. Nugent are absolutely untrue." The trustees include Shas B. Dutcher, president of the Hamilton

The Guyandotte was bound out for Norloik with thirteen cabin passengers on board, having salled from her pier, No. 26, North River, at 3 o'clock. The Delaware, bound for Harsimus Covy. Jersey City, had left Rivington-st., East River, shortly before, having in tow the float, No. 3, belonging to Carll Smith & Sons, fertilizers, with eight freight cars loaded with manure. The tug coming down the East River and the steamer down the North River rounded toward each other at the Battery at the same moment. The tide was setting in very strong, and the heavily loaded float made navigation for the Delaware exceedingly difficult. Signals between the two vessels were exchanged for the Delaware to pass ahead of the Guyandotte, but the distance was miscalculated, and as the float was directly across the bows of the steamer the latter struck it just forward of the starboard beam. The fron nose of the Guyandotte cut into the float, which began to settle immediately. Five of the eight cars went tumbling off, and the single deckhand went overboard with them. The Guyandotte hacked clear of the wreck, and Captain Davis, sceing that he could be of no assistance, proceeded on the word of the tugs near the some of the collision hastened to the assistance of the deckhand reach him he sank. The tugs then helped the Delaware to tow the float with the three remaining cars to the Jersey flats, where she was beached. The drowned man's name was Andrew Mathews, and he leaves a family living in Greenwich-st. The car float was valued at $5,000 and was fully insured.

FUSING ALMS TO A STURDY MENDICANT. While on his way to the Lying-In Hospital at Seventeenth-st, and Second-ave., on Thursday evening, Dr. Bayliss Earle, one of the physicians of the spital, was attacked by a victous beggar, and received a black eye and several bruises.

Grand total. $6,477.000

The destination of the gold that goes by La Gascogne is Vienna, the same as the previous shipments. The gold is to be used in carrying out the Austrian currency scheme. Kidder, Peabody & Co. will ship $750,000 by the Lahn, of the North German Lloyd Line, which sails from New-York next Tuesday. The offering of bills drawn against the gold exports caused a decline of three-eighths of a cent in the pound in exchange rates yesterday. Actual closing rates for demand bills were 4.87%, and for cables 4.87%. It was said that the heavy importations of goods from Europe and the sale here by Europe of large amounts of American securities had made the United States a debtor country once more. The doctor was proceeding along Second-ave., and was within a block of the hospital, when the fellow stepped out of the doorway of a building and said: "Give me some money, and give it to me quick." The doctor paid no attention to the demand, and the beggar repeated his demand, adding "Are you deaf? I want some dough, and no fooling. Dr. Earle attempted to go on his way, but the beggar seized him by the coat and gave him a terrific blow in the eye. The doctor shouted for the police, and Patrolman Magner went to his rescue. The beggar fiercely resisted arrest, but a liberal ap-plication of the policeman's club caused him to capitulate. The last three years, however, have been marked by abnormal gold movements, based on abnormal conditions which, it is said, no longer exist. FIREMEN TO PARADE AND DRILL. The Board of Fire Commissioners yesterday decided to hold the annual parade, drill and exhibition of the Department on Thursday, May 27, and in-structed Chief Bonner to make the necessary arrangements. WHERE TO GO FOR THE SUMMER. "Rural Summer Homes on the Picturesque Erie" the title of a handsome illustrated guidebook published by the passenger department of the Erie Railroad Company. The Illustrations are in tone, and are far superior to those found in the usual run of guidebooks; indeed, some of them are really beautiful specimens of photo-engraving. Full particulars are given of the various summer resorts on the Erie main and branch lines, including distances from New-York, elevation, population, number of trains daily and rates. A list of hotels and boarding-houses is also added, and altogether the book is a most complete guide for those in search of a country resort for the summer. "Whether," says the introduction, "It be a modern hotel, where fashion and pride reign supreme; a quiet farmhouse by ion and pride reign supreme; a quiet farmhouse by babbling brook, a retreat far up on the rugged mountainside, or a modest home upon the shadowy shores of some crystal lake, they are all here, and one has but to choose between them. At the end of the book are printed 8: illustrations of summer homes on the Eric Rallroad, which include some pretty specimens of domestic architecture.
